More Meat Control Being Advocated

U. S. URGED TO SEIZE PACKING INDUSTRY NOW

First Congressional Food Investigation Since OPA Return Opens

BOSTON, Sept. 30—A demand that the government seize the meat packing industry was made today at the first congressional food investigation held since meats were returned to OPA control.

George F. Markham, legislative agent of the Massachusetts CIO, told the investigating committee that an abnormal situation exists and what is needed is more government control, not less.

Markham charged that the packers were on strike for "inflationary prices" and that would mean that the "available meat will move to the upper income families. Those who cannot pay will not get any. Families with limited income would be rationed out of the market."

He said the supply and demand situation makes controls necessary, but since the "packers and ranchers will not cooperate with a price control program, the government must take over and operate the industry in the public interest."

"On June 22, the Massachusetts CIO declared that the meat trust's record demonstrated that the only solution was for the government to take over the meat packing industry and, as necessary, buy up at a fair price and profit, the cattle on the range. We renew that proposal."

"We approve President Truman's rejection of . . . a price control holiday. But he has not gone far enough. The big packers and ranchers will continue to strike against the authority of the government—in the interests of super profits, rather than consumer or public welfare."

The congressional investigation was called by U. S. Rep. Christian A. Herter, R. Mass., lone New Englander on the committee to investigate food shortages. It was authorized by U. S. Rep. Stephen Pace, D. Ga., committee chairman.

GOVERNMENT TO TRY TO BREAK POWER STRIKE

By United Press

The federal government sought to break Pittsburgh's deadlocked power strike today, and announced that the threat of another nationwide shipping tie-up at midnight was mounting with the approach of the deadline.

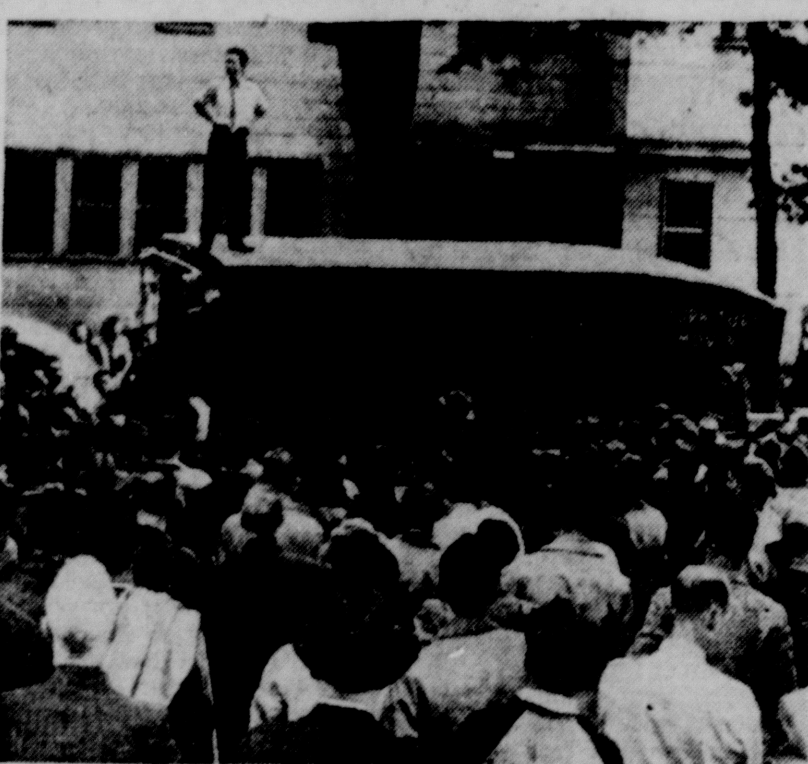

Government conciliators reported that the prospects of a new maritime strike had reached a "critical stage." The new walkout would follow by less than a week final settlement of the earlier tie-up, worst in the nation's history.

Meanwhile, the government sent two conciliators to Pittsburgh to help mediate the walkout of 3,500 power workers now in its seventh day of apparently hopeless stalemate. The strike has forced many industrial and commercial establishments to close and has resulted in paralysis of Pittsburgh's public transportation.

SQUATTER MOVEMENT HITS CANADA

A LEADER OF THE VETERANS' squatter movement in Canada, Edward Hanratty (top) stands on the roof of a moving van in Ottawa and urges home-seekers to move into government buildings. Later, he was arrested (bottom) by police Sergeant George H. Bartlett on charges of forcibly entering government property and obstructing the police. The squatters declared they would stick by Hanratty, who is a former air force officer with 46 raids over Europe to his credit. (International)

Yugoslav Court Opens Trial Of Archbishop

ZAGREB, Sept. 30—Archbishop Aloysius Stepinac, spiritual leader of 2,000,000 Croatian Catholics, went on trial today for alleged Nazi collaboration and crimes against the Yugoslav government.

A 51-page indictment charged the 46-year-old archbishop with forcing people to join the Catholic church and aiding the Fascist Ustashi movement. The public prosecutor said the forced conversions were designed to "strengthen racial interests in the Balkans and secure the penetration of Italian imperialism."

Stepinac refused to select his own defense counsel "for reasons of principle." The four-man people's court named two attorneys to handle his case.

The archbishop was brought to trial along with 15 other defendants, including Erik Lisak, the notorious Ustashi colonel. Stepinac appeared calm as he entered the courtroom. He was bareheaded and wore a simple black clerical robe.

Stepinac was described by the public prosecutor as "no longer an archbishop, but a most responsible terrorist conspirator."

"Consequently," he said, "There is no question of persecution of the Catholic church, priests, or the faithful. The criminal proceedings are against Stepinac, who, as a traitor to our people, helped those who occupied Yugoslavia, collaborated with the Ustashi, and aided the Ustashi remnants after the liberation."

Referring to Stepinac's alleged "forcible conversions," the prosecutor said "crime remains crime even if it is approved and consecrated by the pope—and for such crime one should answer before the people's court."

Today's proceedings were expected to be occupied entirely by the hearing of the indictment. The Zagreb radio broadcast the prosecutor's lengthy statement, but it was barely audible in Belgrade.

2,135,000 VETS ARE RECEIVING MONTHLY CHECKS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—The veterans administration announced today that more than 2,135,000 veterans are receiving monthly compensation or pensions totaling $90,000,000 for wartime service.

Although some veterans are being paid for service dating back to the early Indian war campaigns, VA said, 75 per cent of the total are veterans of world war II with service-connected disabilities.

As of Sept. 1, about 1,592,000 World War II veterans were on VA compensation rolls, compared with 636,000 a year ago.

In addition to wartime cases, another 42,000 veterans are receiving compensation totaling $1,526,000 per month as a result of disabilities received during peacetime service.

Monthly payments aggregating about $27,000,000 also are being made to dependents of 520,000 deceased veterans, mostly from the two world wars.

AMERICA WANTS SHARE IN PLANS FOR THE DANUBE

Sen. Vandenberg Demands Place In Program Of Internationalization

PARIS, Sept. 30—Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, R. Mich., demanded before the peace conference today that the United States have a share in plans for internationalization of the Danube.

The American and Russian viewpoints on the Danube collided as the 10th week of the conference began. Vandenberg, aide to Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, devoted his maiden speech at the conference to the Danube.

When Vandenberg voiced the demand for an American voice in Danube internationalization plans, Fedor Gusev of Russia challenged him. Gusev asked why Russia and other distant states had no voice in the regulation of navigation on the St. Lawrence river.

The British-American demand for unrestricted movement of international trade along the Danube was vigorously resisted by Soviet Balkan and its Balkan satellites. The Danube, greatest waterway in southeast Europe, touches five countries on its course from southern Germany to the Black sea.

As the conference entered its 10th week—the last week for commission work under the speed-up plan—a United Press survey disclosed that the nine working commissions were only two-thirds finished.

They have voted on 147 of the 223 original articles in the five draft treaties. Numerous amendments and one preamble are still unsettled.

Two of the toughest conference issues must be settled in the commission stage by Saturday. Danube navigation is one. The other, and probably more explosive, is Trieste.

A sub-committee trying to draft a statute to govern the proposed free zone of Trieste has reported complete failure and turned the task back to the Italian political commission. It indicated the conference would be wasting time debating the issue before the big four settle their "fundamental differences."

The commission has adopted the French line as a compromise Italian-Yugoslav frontier over extreme Yugoslav opposition. Yugoslavia threatened to refuse signing the treaty if it includes the French line, and to keep her troops in northwest Istria. The commission retaliated by adopting a proposal which would bar Yugoslavia from Italian reparations if she persisted in this course.

Only the Finnish and Romanian political commissions have finished. (Continued on Page Two)

WAC SENTENCED TO PRISON FOR JEWEL THEFT

FRANKFURT, Sept. 30—WAC Capt. Kathleen Nash Durant was convicted in the Kronberg crown jewel theft today and sentenced to five years at hard labor and dismissal from U. S. military service.

A court martial found Mrs. Durant guilty of larceny and embezzlement in the theft of crown jewels of the house of Hesse from Kronberg castle near Frankfurt. Estimates of the value of the loot ran as high as $1,500,000.

The verdict also included conviction on a charge of being absent without leave.

Mrs. Durant and her husband, Col. Jack W. Durant, were brought back to Germany for trial in the Kronberg case after they were arrested in Chicago early in the summer.

Mrs. Durant formerly was mess officer for an officers' rest camp at Kronberg castle.

FIRST FROST IS EXPECTED HERE EARLY TUESDAY

Jack Frost may pay his first visit of the season to the Circleville area Monday night.

The weatherman said the outlook is for clear skies and cooler temperatures with light frost probably by Tuesday morning.

The low reading Monday was 40 degrees as compared with 48 on the same date a year ago. Sunday's high reading was 73 as against 72 at the same time in 1945.

22 LOW MARK RECORDED AS MERCURY DIPS

A cold wave gripped the Middle West today with killing frosts reported in Iowa, Minnesota, and Wisconsin, while on the west coast Los Angeles sweltered in 98-degree heat.

Frost was general throughout the Mississippi river valley, the weather bureau reported. Land O' Lakes, Wis., was the coldest spot of the nation with a low of 22 degrees.

Moderate to heavy frosts were reported in several localities in the central and western portions of Wisconsin.

In Minnesota frosts generally were light to moderate, the weather bureau said. Only one city, International Falls, in the northern portion of the state suffered a killing frost. The temperature there dropped to 25.

Ransom Is Offered For Airmen Held By Lolos

SHANGHAI, Sept. 30—Savage Lolos tribesmen near the Burmese border have enslaved five American airmen and the U. S. Army has given ransom money to a veteran missionary who will attempt to buy their freedom. It was disclosed officially today.

Cel. C. G. Kearney, chief of the American graves registration section, said the tribesmen had indicated they would bargain for release of the fliers.

He said it was believed they would ask "so much a man" and that a Bishop Baudry, missionary veteran of the wild Lolos country, had been given funds to barter. The five airmen have been missing for two years.

Bishop Baudry told an Army investigating team headed by Lt. Col. Herbert H. Wurtzler that a Chinese priest had seen the Americans near Woloho, in southeastern Sikkim province, about 100 miles from the Burmese border.

The Chinese priest told Bishop Baudry the Americans were under close guard at all times. He said they were working as shepherds, carrying wood, and grinding corn.

Kearney said an American rescue team would leave by plane Tuesday for Chengtu, capital of Szechwan province, preparatory to setting up headquarters at Sichang, on the edge of Lolos country, 73 miles from Woloho.

From Sichang, the rescue team will begin the dangerous trek into Lolos territory, maintaining contact with the priest.

CAPITAL FACES TROLLEY STRIKE

Street Car And Bus Workers Scheduled To Walk Off Jobs At Midnight

COLUMBUS, Sept. 30—Street car and bus riders here today faced a complete tie-up of transportation facilities after operators and maintenance men for the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. voted to strike at 12:01 a. m. Tuesday.

The strike would leave an estimated 300,000 daily passengers without transportation. Commuters already had begun to reorganize war-time car pools.

Members of local No. 208, United Transport Workers (CIO), demanded a 30 cents an hour wage raise, an 8-hour per day, 48-hour week; a union shop; a pension plan, and full wages for new operators.

The company reportedly had offered instead an increase of eight cents per hour, half pay for new operators and a reduction in the number of hours of overtime work.

The company's 425 operators now receive 95 cents per hour and 125 maintenance men are paid $1.06 per hour.

No conciliation meetings had yet been scheduled. Mayor James Rhodes met with union officials yesterday, but said he was not acting as a mediator.

WORLD BANK TO SEEK PERMITS FOR INVESTING

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—Eugene Meyer, president of the $9,100,000,000 world bank, said today he would seek legislation in several states to permit savings banks and insurance companies to invest in securities of the world bank.

The possibility of marketing securities in Canada also is being discussed, Meyer told the bank's board of directors in his first annual report.

Meyer said the bank already had invested some $125,000,000 of its funds in short-term U. S. government securities and was about ready to start lending operations to help rehabilitate devastated countries.

He said the bank had a staff of about 100 and an annual payroll of about $1,000,000.

21 DEFENDANTS AT NUERNBERG FACING DEATH OR PRISON

Tribunal Brands Nazi Germany Guilty Of Ruthless, Aggressive War; Denounces Practices Of Hitler and Aides

NUERNBERG, Sept. 30—The international war crimes tribunal today pronounced Nazi Germany guilty of ruthless, aggressive war against 11 countries and stripped the 21 Nazi defendants of their last hopes for acquittal.

The tribunal declared the German high command, Reich cabinet and brown-shirted S. A. stormtroopers innocent of criminality as organizations. It found the Gestapo, the S. S. and its S. D. security police component, and parts of the Nazi leadership corps to be criminal groups.

Justices of Russia, France, the United States and Britain castigated the Nazi system in relentless terms. It was clear none of the 21 men in the dock would escape death or a prison term.

Some may be found innocent on part of the four charges against them. A few probably will escape the death penalty when individual sentences are announced tomorrow. The tribunal's relentless catalogue of Nazi crimes which racked Europe made clear that even the lucky ones faced prison terms.

The tribunal made it evident that many members of the three acquitted organizations must be punished as individuals.

In scathing terms it denounced members of the German high command.

RELAX NEWS RULING

BERLIN, Sept. 30—The Allied control council today agreed to admit news correspondents to witness the execution of Nuremberg war trial defendants.

The council agreed to allow two correspondents from each of the four occupying nations to witness the executions.

mand a ruthless military caste responsible for untold suffering. Yet it found it could not convict the high command and general staff as such within the tribunal's charter.

Called Disgrace

"They have been a disgrace to the honorable profession of arms," it said.

The 21 grey and broken defendants who once swaggered across Europe behind Adolf Hitler sat intently as the justices droned through the 250-page judgment, estimated to run 75,000 words.

Some were extremely tense, others glum. Once Hermann Goering and Rudolf Hess laughed. But only for a second.

They heard the justices reading in relays pronounce Nazism a criminal system and condemn its leaders. (Continued on Page Two)

2 OSU STUDENTS ARE FOUND DEAD NEAR CAMPUS

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 30—Bodies of a young man and a young woman, both students at Ohio State University, were found here today in a ravine within two blocks of the campus.

Police identified them as Alice Krone Patterson, 20, Lockhaven, Pa., and Donald Throne, 20, Eau Claire, Wis.

Police said Throne apparently shot Miss Patterson, then killed himself at about 8:30 Sunday evening.

Friends of the two engineering students said they had been going together for some time. The two were last seen alive when Throne, who had been crippled in an automobile accident, picked up Miss Patterson to take her to Westminster Foundation, a campus religious center.

Police said the weapon was a .22 calibre target pistol, and that evidence of a struggle was found near the bodies. The girl's shoe was found 10 feet away.

ROOSEVELT HURLS CHARGE

NEW YORK, Sept. 30—Elliott Roosevelt charged today that the British, aided by a "small group of willful men" in Washington, have sabotaged the plans for peace made by his father, the late President Franklin Delano Roosevelt. President Roosevelt was quoted by his son as having made plans to prevent the British from forming a bloc of nations against Russia as soon as the war was over.

Thornton said Dunning was assisted by Sigmund Janas, an executive of the Canadian-Colonial airline with headquarters in New York, in obtaining the $125,000 from a Columbia, S. C., bank in 1945. It was allegedly turned over to the "Frog Man," also known as "Kid Tiger," in Canada. Fernandez denies that he ever had such nicknames.

FBI ACCUSES SPANIARD OF HUGE SWINDLE

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 30—Antonio Navarro Fernandez, described by the FBI as an international swindler, today sought a lawyer and $100,000 to save himself from federal charges based on a $125,000 swindle.

FBI Special Agent J. E. Thornton identified M. O. Dunning, a Washington (Shoreham bldg.) lawyer, as the victim of the swindle in which he was tempted by a prospective $5,000,000 return.

The 52-year-old claimant, to royal Spanish blood tried yesterday to line up legal assistance but without success. It was not known whether he had asked his banks in Canada and New York to forward the bond money. The justice department seeks to transfer him to New York for trial.

21 DEFENDANTS AT NUERNBERG FACING DEATH OR PRISON

ership for conspiracy, crimes against peace, war crimes and crimes against humanity.

Nazism was convicted of violating the Kellogg-Brand pact outlawing war, which Germany signed, by planned aggression starting with Czechoslovakia. The names Austria, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Norway, Denmark, Belgium, The Netherlands, Luxembourg, Yugoslavia, Greece and Russia recalled a parade of crimes which the tribunal said was on a scale unparalleled in the history of war.

Deny 'Tool' Claims

The tribunal without reservation threw out defendants' claims that they were only tools of Hitler, carrying out orders. It ruled that by following willingly his plan of aggression, they accepted responsibility for their deeds.

Martin Bormann, the 22nd defendant, never has been caught and was being judged in absentia. He probably died from a Russian shell in Berlin.

Reading of the massive document was begun at 10 a. m. (3 a. m. EST) by Chief Justice Sir Geoffrey Lawrence of Britain.

The Reich cabinet, the court ruled, never really acted as a group after 1937. The judgment said its members could conveniently be tried on other grounds without charging the cabinet itself with criminality.

Stern Mood Felt

The 21 defendants listened impassively while the relentless voices of Lawrence and his alternate, Sir Norman Birkett, catalogued the crimes of Nazism. Defendants and spectators quickly sensed the tribunal's stern mood.

Lawrence began reading in a low conversational tone, but grew louder as he described the development of national socialism from a tiny group in 1920 to a force which terrorized Europe and threatened the world.

Names of the individuals rang out from time to time in the reading. All listened intently from the prisoners' dock where they have sat since last November.

The finding of innocent for the cabinet, high command and S. A. proved the tribunal's determination to be objective. It particularly sought to avoid branding as criminal the run of the mine membership of those organizations which gave blind loyalty to Hitler and the Nazi regime but knew nothing of high policy.

There was little solace in that for the 21 leaders awaiting their doom, but some may escape death.

Soldiers Guard Arm
Outside the courtroom, and on the roof above it, American soldiers by the hundred stood watch to prevent demonstrations. Armored cars reinforced the street parties.

The first section of the judgment ruled that the Nazis had committed war crimes on a vast scale never before seen in the history of war. It called persecution of Jews a record of consistent, systematic inhumanity on the greatest scale. Concentration camps were termed a notorious means of terrorizing occupied countries.

In the opening section, the judgment gave a history of the prosecution, a history of the Nazi regime and a discussion of what constitutes aggressive war.

Broke Pact
It ruled that war for the solution of international controversies undertaken as an instrument of national policy certainly includes a war of aggression, and that such war was outlawed by the Kellogg-Brand pact of Paris, Aug. 28, 1928. Germany signed that pact.

The judgment recalled how all defendants had taken the attitude that the heads of states should enjoy immunity from responsibility, and that international law did not apply to individuals. It declared the doctrine of immunity of the heads of states did not apply where the state had violated international law, and that for many years past military tribunals had tried and punished individuals guilty of violating the rules of warfare laid down by the Hague convention.

Blinding lights for still and motion picture cameramen flooded the stone corridor outside the courtroom. White-gloved guards with shaking fingers nervously scrutinized each entry pass.

Some 7,000,000 Germans figuratively stood massed at the dock with the defendants through the prosecution of six organizations. These included 4,500,000 S. A. storm troops at the time of the 1934 blood purge. The S. A. later dwindled to become only gathering place for small-time party hacks.

The verdict made clear that the ordinary S. A. man has nothing to fear from allied justice unless he committed some specific crime.

Particularly scathing language was directed against the German general staff, although it was cleared as an organization of criminality.

"Evidence of criminality against many members of the general staff and high command as individuals is clear and convincing," the tribunal said.

"They have been responsible in large measure for the miseries and suffering that has fallen on millions of men, women and children. They have been a disgrace to the honorable profession of arms."

"Without their military guidance the aggressive ambitions of Hitler and his fellow Nazis would have been academic and sterile."

"Although they are not as a group falling within the words of the charter, they were certainly a ruthless military caste. Contemporary German militarism flourished briefly with its recent ally, national socialism, as well as, or better than, it had in the generations of the past."

List First Acts

The judgment branded the seizures of Austria and Czechoslovakia as the first Nazi acts of aggression. It stated that Hitler made a speech Nov. 23, 1939, in the presence of his supreme commanders which removed any question of doubt as to the aggressive character of the actions against Austria and Czechoslovakia, and the war against Poland.

It expressed the opinion that all evidence showed the seizures of both Austria and Czechoslovakia were acts of naked aggression, and the war against Poland was an aggressive war, and therefore a crime within the meaning of the charter.

The chief French justice, Bonedieu Debavres, took up the reading after the morning intermission.

SIX MOTORISTS ARE FINED IN COURTS HERE

Paul C. Foster, Portsmouth, arrested for speeding on U. S. Route 23, when he was enroute home Saturday night from the Ohio State-Missouri football game at Columbus, was fined $10 and costs by Mayor Ben H. Gordon. Foster had been nabbed by State Highway Patrolman Dean A. Gorton.

William F. Bender, also arrested on U. S. Route 23 by Patrolman Gorton, was fined $10 and costs by Mayor Gordon on a reckless driving charge.

Joseph Hogan, arrested by State Highway Patrolman L. G. Rideour, was fined $10 and costs by Justice of the Peace Harold O. Eveland.

Edward Sturgill was fined $10 and costs by Justice Eveland on a reckless driving charge filed against Sturgill by Patrolman Rideour.

Fine of $10 and costs was imposed by Justice Eveland on Joseph Dowler, Chillicothe, for reckless driving. Dowler had been arrested by Patrolman Rideour. Forfeiture of $10 bond posted by Albert Jividen, 26, truck driver, McArthur, after his arrest last Friday by police on a charge of speeding on North Court street, was ordered by Mayor Gordon when Jividen failed to appear in court Saturday night.

CHILICOTHE BOY PICKED UP BY COUNTY OFFICIALS

A 14-year-old Chillicothe boy who became lost in Pickaway county after allegedly stealing the automobile of his father while the latter was working at a Chillicothe factory was taken into custody at Mead, Sunday, by Sheriff Charles Radcliff.

A few hours later the lad was released to the custody of Chillicothe police who told Sheriff Radcliff that the boy's father and step-mother had decided to prosecute him. The boy allegedly stole the car keys from his step-mother.

VIOLENCE FLARES IN FILM STRIKE

POLICEMEN TAKE STRIKER Harry Ralsky (on ground) into custody for the second time in two days as a free-for-all break out at the gates of the Warner Brothers Studio in Burbank, Cal., during the jurisdictional strike that has hit major film companies. Ralsky is alleged to have slugged an ex-actor who was attempting to photograph the melee. (International)

LIBERALS OPEN DRIVE TO PUSH NEW DEAL IDEAS

CHICAGO, Sept. 30—Three hundred liberals from 35 states today began a campaign to re-establish the late President Roosevelt's new deal policies at home and "good neighbor" policy abroad without creating a third party.

Backing the movement were two former Roosevelt cabinet members, CIO labor organizations, a farm group, and political action groups which supported Roosevelt in 1944 and wanted Henry Wallace as his running mate.

The group will seek to throw an army of 500,000 precinct workers into the 1946 and 1948 presidential elections to insure the defeat of "reactionaries." It will cross party lines in supporting candidates pledged to carry out its program, but spokesmen said that most candidates the group supports will be Democrats.

Delegates, who adopted detailed foreign and domestic platforms and plans for political action in a two-day conference here, threw their weight solidly behind Wallace in his dispute with President Truman over foreign policy.

Ransom Is Offered For Airmen Held By Lolos

stant radio contact with Shanghai. Kearney said another plane would be ready to take off from Shanghai when it is learned that Bishop Baudry has returned with the Lolo ransom demands.

"The success of this mission will be dependent entirely on the finesse and diplomacy used by the negotiators in getting the men out alive," Kearney said. Every precaution will be taken to protect the lives of the airmen, he added.

The 73 miles between Sichang and Woloho is an area of mountains, gorges and ravines. There are no known roads. It was believed the rescue team would have to go most of the way on foot.

Lolo tribesmen are sky-worshippers who share the wilds with huge Chinese eagles and a few giant pandas. Chinese from the lowlands generally stay away from the area.

Officials believed the American fliers were captured by the Lolos after the airmen bailed out while flying lend-lease supplies to Chungking over the "hump" across Burma from India.

ROBBINS PLACED ON PROBATION FOR FIVE YEARS

James Robbins, 49, Ashville barber and confessed abortionist, was released under five years probation, Monday, by order of Pickaway County Common Pleas Judge Emmitt L. Crist. The court had had Robbins' probation plea under advisement since a hearing held after the Ashville man on Sept. 25 changed his plea to guilty.

In granting freedom on probation Judge Crist warned Robbins against further law violations and ordered him to report each month to the county prosecutor during the five-year period.

Judge Crist, in announcing his decision, said he had taken into consideration the fact that Robbins had no previous criminal record, that his health is impaired, and that several prominent Ashville residents had appeared in court in behalf of Robbins and had expressed their opinion that the admitted abortionist should be given another chance.

Robbins had been in the county jail since he was arrested several weeks ago. Immediately following the arrest Robbins allegedly confessed to Sheriff Charles Radcliff and County Prosecutor Kenneth Robbins that he had performed illegal operations on three Circleville young housewives. Robbins was indicted Sept. 6 on the abortion charge and on Sept. 10 he entered a plea of not guilty. By testifying before the grand jury the three Circleville women became immune from prosecution, it was pointed out by Prosecutor Robbins and by Judge Crist.

Col. Gen. Alfred Jodi never refers to the verdict. As far as he is concerned the case is over and he does not wish to think about it, one source said.

OCTOBER 5th is an important date

All men who volunteer for the new Regular Army on or before October 5, 1946, are guaranteed the full educational benefits of the G. I. Bill of Rights for the complete term of their enlistment—1, 1 1/2, 2 or 3 years, whichever they choose.

For men enlisting after October 5th, benefits under the G. I. Bill of Rights will accrue only so long as the period of emergency exists. Upon official termination of the war, these benefits cease.

These benefits, which include the opportunity to get a full college, trade or business school education, are very important to every man who plans to enlist in the new Regular Army. Be sure you get all the facts before October 5th from your nearest U. S. Army Recruiting Station.

ed their work. The military and economic clauses of the treaties for those countries are incomplete. A strong air of uncertainty about the future of the central and eastern Mediterranean area was observable.

The Trieste sub-committee's report of failure emphasized this with its statement "from the beginning it became clear there existed fundamental differences regarding the character of the free territory, the authority of the security council with respect to the free territory and deriving from it the position and role of the governor as representing the security council, and position and role of the legislative assembly."

GEN. DE GAULLE REJECTS NEWEST FRENCH PROGRAM

EPINAL, France, Sept. 30—Gen. Charles De Gaulle rejected France's new draft constitution as "unsatisfactory" in an address here yesterday and called for a strong government capable of dealing with the United States and Russia.

De Gaulle said France could only safeguard her independence and security in "this hard and dangerous world" by establishing a government "capable of carrying in a fixed direction a heavy and continuous responsibility." A crowd of 20,000 persons heard his address.

He said an "ambitious grouping of the Slavs" was being realized "willy nilly under the aegis of a power without limits," and that "young America, overflowing with resources has just discovered the perspectives of war-like power."

RINGGOLD FARM AUCTION SALE ATTRACTS MANY

Auction sale of 90 head of registered Guernseys, 42 cows, 13 bulls and 35 heifers, and the 135-acre farm with complete dairy buildings and two modern dwellings was in progress Monday at the Ringgold Farm, Route 4, situated five miles east of Circleville on U. S. Route 22.

Low bids featured the livestock auction. Ringgold's Conqueror's Emory, one of the finest bred bulls in the nation, sold under the hammer for $2,000, and Baronet, another prize bull, brought $1,100. An offer of $5,000 for a one-half interest in Conqueror was rejected less than one year ago.

The sale began at mid-morning and was expected to continue until late afternoon. Early in the afternoon the number of potential bidders was estimated at 900. The cattle placed on sale are considered of exceptionally high quality. The selling was under direction of the firm of Louis McL. Merryman and Sons, of Sparks, Md.

DR. J. C. BAKER TO BE HISTORY DAY SPEAKER

Ohio University President
To Give Address At
Logan Elm Sunday

Thirty-fourth annual celebration at Logan Elm Park, sponsored by the Ohio History Day Association of Circleville, Ohio, will be held next Sunday at 2 p. m.

Dr. John Calhoun Baker, president of Ohio University, Athens, will give the address for this event. Eugene D. Rigney, Chillicothe, chairman of the program committee, is assisted by Dr. Lloyd Jones, Circleville; John F. Carlisle, Columbus; and Frank Sharp, Kingston.

Logan Elm is probably the best known tree in Ohio. Under or near it the Lord Dunmore treaty, which brought peace for a time with the Indians, was signed in October of 1774. It was here that Chief Logan of the Mingo tribe made his famous speech.

Logan Elm Park is a State Memorial administered by the Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society, located approximately seven miles south of Circleville and about one mile off Route 23. The commemoration of the historic event, together with adequate parking and picnic facilities, make this a popular occasion each year.

The officers of the Ohio History Day Association are David E. Crouse, Kingston, president; Mrs. Howard Jones, Circleville, president emerita; John F. Carlisle, Columbus, vice president; Mrs. Helen B. Anderson, Circleville, recording secretary; Mrs. Anna Chandler, Circleville, corresponding secretary, and M. E. Noggle, Circleville, treasurer.

AUTOMOBILE DESTROYED BY FIRE ON HIGHWAY

Fire completely destroyed a 1930 model automobile at 5:30 p. m. Sunday at the intersection of State Routes 104 and 316, four miles north of Circleville.

State Highway Patrolman L. G. Ridenour said the car was owned and driven by Philip Binger, Route 3, Circleville, and that Binger said the machine was not insured. According to the officer's report Jacob Herb, Columbus, was a front-seat passenger. When the two men noticed a strange odor they stopped to investigate. Lifting up the rear seat they discovered the car was ablaze. Buckets of water were carried from a nearby farm in a futile attempt to extinguish the flames. Patrolman Ridenour said the value of the car was not stated. The origin of the fire was undetermined.

To Be Speaker

DR. JOHN C. BAKER, president of Ohio University, will speak Sunday at the annual celebration held at Logan Elm.

AUTOMOBILE AND TRUCK COLLIDE ON ROUTE 56

An automobile owned by Walter Richards, Route 4, Circleville, and driven by Fairy Richards, 20, same address, was damaged at 7:15 p. m. Sunday when it was in collision with the rear of a truck on State Route 56, one mile east of Circleville.

State Highway Patrolman L. G. Ridenour said the truck was operated by Frank Johnston, 25, Laurelville, and that the mishap occurred when the sudden halting of a car ahead compelled Johnston to stop suddenly. The officer's report said no one was hurt.

HAY FARM POND NEARLY READY

Oesterle Farm Terraces To Be Shown At Teacher
Training School

A farm pond included in the conservation farm plan for the C. T. Hay farm 1 1/2 miles east of the Walnut school in Walnut township is near completion and should be seen by those interested, before the rains cover the site with water. The height of the dam is 12 feet holding a depth of 8 feet of water. Harold Hines, who is operating the land and building the pond, is installing the tile outlet which will drain the usual run-off and also the emergency spillway that will discharge the flood water.

About two acres are to be fenced in the pond area, which are to be planted to pines, furnished by the Pickaway Soil Conservation District, for wildlife refuge and shrubs may be planted on a border near the waterline for the same purpose. Mr. Hines moved the earth in the fill with a rotary scraper and the cost of building the pond will be comparatively low.

Additional terraces were surveyed last week on the Manford

BOB FICKHARDT IS EDITOR OF VETERAN PAPER

Robert Fickhardt, son of George Fickhardt, North Court street, and Mrs. Ruth Fickhardt, Dayton, is the editor and publisher of The Vet Village News, a weekly tabloid for residents of Miami university's Veterans' Village.

The first issue of the paper contained news of student vets and their wives, timely editorials, material regarding G. I. loans, sur-

Oesterle farm in Madison township, where a complete erosion control and soil building rotation are planned. Special charts are being prepared to illustrate this farm as a demonstration for the teachers' training school to be held Oct. 16. A field trip is to be made to the farm and a discussion of the days activities will be held in Commercial Point during the evening.

September applications for conservation farm plans received by the Pickaway district, came from Attorney Harry Margulis of Ashville, Sam D. Smith of Madison township, John F. Dowler of Harrison township and Robert Norpoth of Walnut township. Sixty applications covering 12,000 acres of farm land are in the district files through Sept. 30.

plus books, etc., and a section for advertising.

Fickhardt and his wife write the entire paper themselves. Fickhardt, who has been associated with the Dayton Herald and the Oxford Press, will be graduated from Miami at the end of this semester and plans to make journalism his career.

Vet Village is an emergency housing project for veterans and their wives and consists of two-family housing units and trailers. A similar housing project for single veterans is under construction. Miami's total enrollment for 1946-47 is over 4500 students on campus, with an additional 250 in the off-campus centers established at Middletown and Hamilton.

HOSLER HEARING DELAYED

Jury trial of Lawrence Hosler, 53, Pickaway county man under indictment for grand larceny, was scheduled to begin Monday in Common Pleas court but was postponed until Oct. 7. He is accused of the theft of a saddle, electric drill, and a brooder heating unit belonging to George Van Camp.

THREE ARE HURT WHEN AUTO HITS RAIL, OVERTURNS

Three persons were suffering Monday from injuries received when the automobile in which they were riding struck a guard rail on the Kingston pike, three miles south of Circleville, at 11:30 p. m. Saturday, hurtled over a 10-foot bridge abutment, and turned over twice in a creek, according to the report of State Highway Patrolman L. G. Ridenour.

Norman McNeal, 43, Route 1, Circleville, the driver, suffered cuts and bruises. He was removed to his home after being given first aid at Berger hospital. Admitted to the hospital for treatment were his wife, Mrs. Edna McNeal, 46, who sustained a shoulder fracture and numerous cuts and bruises, and Mack Moore, 43, of 338 East Mill street, right shoulder fracture and numerous cuts and bruises.

The injured trio was removed to the hospital in a car from the department of Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff.

The logical turtle and the "Small Businessman"

Speaking from experience, the turtle said, "You've got to stick your neck out if you want to get any place".

And his kind of logic is what America thrives on... it makes so much sense to folks who like their independence.

Ben Franklin believed in it when he lit out for Philadelphia.

So did an ex-G.I. named Jones who started his own small business just yesterday... on a loan, but on his own.

What happens now is his business... (and everybody else's!) His customers wish him success—so he can serve them better. The business men who serve him likewise are backing him up.

For, just as Sohio Dealer Jones counts on the quality and popularity of Standard Oil products to help him succeed, so does Standard Oil stake its future on men like him.

That's how it is with American business, small and large. Each needs the other... and always will.

COAL FOR EUROPE

COAL has become one of this country's largest exports, owing to the great need for that fuel on the continent of Europe and the breakdown of Britain's mining industry.

Britain formerly supplied most of Europe's coal and South America's as well. The largest annual amount exported from the United States used to be only 50,000 tons. During August of this year, America exported 2,000,000 tons, all of which was shipped on a cash basis, with the exception of Italy's share taken care of by UNRRA.

Conservative forecasters predict that the coal shortage in Europe may last another ten years, and many coal producers would like to have the United States remain the largest exporter of coal. Others, however, point to the fact that high shipping expenses bring the price at European ports to $20 a ton. Foreign buyers are now willing and eager to foot this huge fuel bill, but the more conservative producers feel that when these countries become self-supporting, they may balk at the price.

American foreign policy, which favors quick rehabilitation of European countries, is supported by large shipments of coal, without which the program could not be carried out. Hardly an industry can be named which has not a basic dependence upon coal, not to mention the private users who have suffered quite enough from lack of heat. Coal is one more thing found here in abundance which America can and should share with the world at present.

FOR ROADSIDE BEAUTY

SOON telephones will function without lines. War-stimulated experiments with micro-wave radio-telephone equipment are responsible.

The result will be an incalculable improvement in the American landscape. Long rows of telephone poles strung together by their wires are ugly. Furthermore, the universal practice of butchering and maiming roadside trees, to free the wire of contact with their branches, has bespoiled the magnificence of countless trees and ruined the beauty of miles of highway.

The micro-wave radio-telephone will have a great advantage over the present equipment. But it will not be here for some time.

Another good idea in certain kinds of mental cases is to go home and go to bed at a normal hour.

Another interesting speculation is how much pop corn it takes to keep this nation operating.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—No one around the state department knew what to say about Stalin's ultra-exclusive statement on the world situation to the London Sunday Times, and for several days no one said anything. The experts were chasing commas behind the scenes for hidden meanings. Some unofficial comma chasers announced they thought the interview marked rapid progress toward better understanding between the two nations, but officialdom seemed waiting for action on the part of the Russians to say more definitely what its real import would turn out to be.

The administration has been supersensitive on the subject of Russia since the Wallace affair. In this connection, under-secretary of state Dean Acheson, who has been fishing for some weeks in Canada, is said to have come down to his news stand there and have noticed a headline on the Wallace speech whereupon he immediately went back fishing for two more weeks. The story is not guaranteed by me, but actually the under-secretary remained longer at his secret fishing hideout than he had expected to.

During Acheson's absence, Mr. Byrnes' good friend William Clayton, assistant, was in active charge, and he said nothing even off the record to the newsmen in press conferences. Thus cautious, reluctant or dismayed was the administration at the high-pressure developments no doubt concocted for effect upon the Paris meeting.

As a matter of fact, however, during these high tension days the administration comforted itself, in part at least, with the expectation that the Paris gathering would be over by October 15 and all would be ready for the gathering of the United Nations assembly on October 23 as scheduled. But to what extent the negotiations at Paris would be successful, they were not able to offer any expert advice. From the little bits of information like the Stalin speech, the Finnish treaty and other published matters, they judged that the decisions would be subject to severe controversy. The precise nature of the situation was somewhat like the reactions of the analysts on the Stalin interview. Stalin said he had no fear of war, but said nothing about the size of his army which was put at 6,000,000 men in the last public announcement from Moscow on the subject, last June. His feeling that there would not be any war was, therefore, somewhat left in confusion by the last announced martial preparations of his government. So the answer seemed to be "yes" and "no". Certainly the atmosphere had not been cleared as much as an announcement by Stalin would have cleared it, if he had said he was cutting the size of the Russian army to the size of ours. Thus also, he accused agents of other nations of waving war flags for propaganda effect on the conference, but earlier pronouncements of his government had directly charged that a capitalistic movement of encirclement was being threatened against the Soviet Union. Here again "yes" and "no".

So the final answer seemed likely to rest upon the extent to which the demands for liberalization of the big four treaties by the 21 nations at Paris would be carried forward, what solutions would be made on perplexing problems like the opening

A Skin Rash on the Hands

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

EVERY woman wants white, smooth-skinned, well-cared-for hands. Even to have them roughened from exposure or work makes her self-conscious and the appearance of a skin rash is a cause for real anxiety. It not only interferes with the routine of daily life but may also be a positive social and economic handicap.

Dr. Norman Tobias of St. Louis, Missouri, has made a study of large numbers of patients with various types of skin rashes on the hands. In about four out of ten instances the condition was due to what is known as contact dermatitis and half of the cases occurred in housewives.

Due to Sensitivity

In these cases, the skin rash is due to sensitivity to some substance with which the hands come in contact. Substances responsible included certain kinds of soap and washing powders, turpentine, varnish, silver polish, and various ointments. In workers, gasoline, cutting oils, glue, photographic solutions and cement may be responsible.

The skin rash in all these cases was made up of patches of inflamed skin containing pimples or blisters. Later on there was some scaling.

The rash usually appears first on the back of the right hand or over the knuckles. After a time, the left hand is affected, but usually to a lesser degree. If not checked by proper treatment, the rash may spread to the wrists and forearm. As a general rule, when the condition is caused by soap and washing powder, it is usually worse in winter and often starts at the base of the thumb. The rash, as a rule, causes severe itching.

Contact dermatitis is usually easy to diagnose by the appearance of the rash and a history of exposure to some irritating substance. What is known as a patch test is helpful in making a diagnosis. This is carried out by applying some of the substance under suspicion to a piece of gauze and fastening it to the skin with adhesive tape.

Inflamed Area

At the end of 24 hours, if the patient is sensitive to the substance being tested, a red, inflamed area will be noted where it has been in contact with the skin.

In treating contact dermatitis when it first starts, some soothing preparation such as a solution of aluminum acetate is employed by the doctor. If the condition has been present for several weeks, ointments containing xeroform, zinc oxide and talc are suggested by Dr. Tobias.

Light mineral oil is used to remove the ointment. If the condition has been present for several months a tar paste is suggested. X-ray is occasionally employed. Ultraviolet light treatments tend to make the condition worse. As a part of the treatment infections in the teeth, tonsils or sinuses, anemia, constipation and a lack of vitamins should all be treated if present.

The plant lice—er, aphids—even invaded Ebbets Field, which, heretofore, has been the sole habitat of only bugs of the baseball variety.

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

WHEN THEY were in the car, Barry swore fluently and continuously from the house to the gates, while Abby listened with admiration and interest. As they turned out of the drive she said respectfully, "Congratulations. I've never heard some of them before."

Barry laughed. "Sorry, darling," he said, "but of all the unmitigated, brassbound, hell-bent—"

Abby said, "Hey... enough's enough. First thing you know you'll be repeating yourself."

He said grimly, "I understand that your pa has a fine collection of jade. Well, he's bought himself quite a specimen."

"Look," asked Abby "are you mad because of me, Barry, or because you don't like seeing a girl Val's age marrying a man over seventy or because it's Val who is marrying him?"

"How very involved, Mrs. L." She said patiently, "Answer me, Butch."

Barry pondered. The slight breeze engendered by the passing of the car was hot and damp. The afternoon was no better than the forenoon. It was, if anything, worse.

"I could do with a swim," he remarked conversationally.

Abby held the jewel case in both hands. She said, "So could I. Now, to get back to what we were saying—"

He said, "Well, frankly, it's fifty-fifty, as to your first two questions. I am mad—which is a masterpiece of understatement—because of you; also, the alliance, viewed impartially, is hardly enticing, but as far as Val is concerned... if that's what she wants, more power to her."

"Did you notice," said Abby, "that no one said anything about being deliciously in love?"

"For that you gotta give 'em credit," said Barry. He whistled. "Wait till Mother hears this. She'll want a blow-by-blow description. Val, with a notebook and in battle dress," he went on, "peace, it's wonderful."

They turned into their driveway and he slowed the car. "It just occurs to me," he said, "you've been busy discussing my reactions. What about your own? You're a remarkable girl, Abby."

She said slowly, "I couldn't believe it when Madge and Craig spoke of the possibility. I told you, remember, that I was hurt? I still thought that, when we walked in and found Val practically in possession—and yet when Father made the announcement, I didn't feel anything."

"That's curious," said Barry, with interest. "Why not?"

"I don't know... unless it's because it doesn't affect you or me... anything that doesn't can't really matter. And yet—"

"Yet what?" he demanded. "Come clean."

"I'm just puzzled," she said. "There's something else, some motive..."

"Well, naturally," he said, "and a child could recognize it... even an unmercenary child."

"I don't mean Val."

"Your father? Let's not just as obvious. You run out on him. He doesn't like it. Val comes up to see the collection—and a fine lot of etchings those turned out to be—and he makes her a nice, respect-table proposition. He says, in effect, live with me and be my love... it won't be for too long. And, frankly," added Barry, and without sparing the blushes, "I would say, not too arduous. This whole maneuver was planned to annoy, distress, and otherwise contravert you."

"What's that, again?"

"It's a good word," Barry defended himself. "Val," he added, "is nothing more than a door, albeit decorative and costly, with which your father can shut you out."

She said, "Maybe... but there's more to it than that, I think."

"How much more?"

"I don't know—yet," she admitted.

Madge was extremely articulate when, finding her and Duncan at the pool, they broke the news to them. Duncan, who was swimming lazily, went down, and rose gasping with water and laughter. He swung himself up on the ledge and remarked that he had to hand it to Val. Madge, however, was enraged; now that it had actually happened, she could and would not believe it. "Abby, you poor child!" said Madge, half laughing, half crying with genuine indignation.

Abby asked mildly, "Why? I don't mind, Madge... it's all right with me. I can even find myself being a little sorry for Val."

"Sorry for Val? Are you out of your mind?" Madge inquired.

"She'll do everything she can to get everything she can and to outstrange you from your father."

Abby said, "That had reached the saturation point long ago, Madge, even before I was married. There's nothing she can do... I'm going to get into my suit and take a swim."

But in the dressing room she wondered. Was there anything Val could do... or her father?

Nothing, as far as logic and reason could determine, yet a nebulous anxiety was a faint mist over her mind. She shook herself mentally to clear it away and presently went back to the pool, where she found Madge characteristically complaining that she and Bob probably wouldn't be asked to the wedding. "And we're family now, for better or worse," she had reminded her listeners.

Barry said lazily, "Sure, when Abby took me on those terms she took you, too, but her father didn't."

"Well, just the same," said Madge, "he might ask us. And Val owes us some consideration."

To her amazement Val wrote a graceful little note. Would Madge and Bob come... there wasn't time for formal invitations. She and Norman were being married in the Congregationalist church. Her home, she added, was not geared for even a small reception, as her mother was not well. The reception would be at the Wallace house.

And she telephoned Abby before the week-end was over. She said, "I'll be in town Tuesday. Could I come in and see you, Abby? I'll be in a welter, of course, getting some clothes together. I thought we could talk wedding. Around six, then?"

At six, she arrived, looking cool in black linen with a white blouse. Abby opened the door. Val came in and looked around. She said, "Madge did wonders with a little chintz, didn't she? It looks a different place."

"Different?" asked Abby, before she thought.

"Quite... I've been here," she explained casually, "a time or two, in Barry's bachelor days."

She sat down, took off her hat, shook her hair at Abby's automatic suggestion of a drink. She said, "I haven't much time... I'm meeting some people for dinner... a sort of spinster supper." She laughed. "Abby, you're very decent, saying you'll stand up with me. Good Lord, what an expression!"

Abby said only, "I suppose you want to decide on what I'll wear."

"As it isn't a big wedding," said Val, "I'm wearing a suit." She sighed. "It seems too bad, I'd always had such a divine mental picture of myself, white, satin, train a mile long, and family lace. Not that we have any lace in the Stanley menage, beyond a few yards of tating. However, it can't be helped and would hardly be suitable."

Abby relinquished her own picture of one of the Botticelli dresses. She offered, "Well, come look for yourself... I hadn't a trousseau," she remarked, as she opened the clothes cupboard doors, "but I've filled in here and there since."

"I'm so dark," mourned Val; "I wish I were fair." She added, "I found a print at Bergdorf's... a pink and black... it's rather nice." She added, very quickly, "I could have managed, you know, as I still rate a discount here and there... but Norman has been very generous."

She raised her hand, the diamond shone on it, and Abby's eyes followed the shining. Val said, with over depreciation, "What with taxes and all, it was awfully extravagant, but he insisted. I'm to have pearls, too," she added, and looked at those which gleamed around Abby's throat.

Abby said, "It's a beautiful ring, Val. Do you see anything here that would do?"

Val plucked various garments from the rods and held them at arm's length. "I have a swatch of the material here," she said, "in my handbag. This aqua print, Abby... I think it will look..."

She laid it over a chair in the bedroom and went to fetch the swatch. "No," she decided. "Do you like the gray? I do."

"The gray" was a short frock, for afternoon, with a square neck and full long sleeves. The color of a dove's breast, it would wash most women out.

Abby said, "I'll try it on... and you can see."

She took off her cotton frock, slipped the gray dress over her head, shook out the skirt. Her hair burned above it, even her pallor triumphed. Val, acclimating with concentration, held the little square of pink threaded with spidery black against it. She said, "That does it... and you can carry pink flowers if we can find them."

Abby got out of the frock and hung it back in place. Val looked at her, in her scant underthings. She thought, I have never disliked anyone so much, really.

Not that her own figure wasn't superlative, her own skin smooth as cream.

STARS SAY—

For Monday, September 30

MONDAY'S astrological forecast holds concrete promise of a happy, lucrative and long-sustained industry and devotion to duty, responsibility and obligations, reaching a climax of fulfilled ambitions and cherished goals. Under the urge of organized talents and capabilities there is every indication of assistance and token of preferment from those in influential positions.

Seek these, reach for high objectives and romance, and pleasant adventure may crown all efforts.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are in line for a sound, progressive and felicitous year, due to sound and trained skills and supported by application, hard work and a co-ordinated spirit of obligation, duty and responsibility, which are due to attract the cordial support and friendly appreciation of those in influential places.

Work to such far-reaching goals, with freedom from fear, romance, and adventure at the end of the road.

A child born on this day will have sound and dependable talents and far-seeing objectives, winning the support of those attracted by sterling worth and ambitions.

That have the bright lights of the not-so-far-away Great White Way.

It's the fervent hope of penance-minded Dodger fans that the aphids aren't really just early birds seeking good seats for the World Series.

Where the aphids came from even the experts at the Brooklyn Botanic Gardens couldn't say. However, Dodger followers were certain they were foreigners for the little green bugs seemed to ignore the umpires and to concentrate on the Flatbush Flock and their rooters.

"The Authority on Authorities"

PERFECT DISTRIBUTION AMONG ALL the different kinds of distributions possible in the cards of a partnership, the nearest to perfect—to produce maximum tricks in proportion to the honor strength held—is that which is featured by just one fitting suit. The more of a misfit the other suits are, the better usually. In its most extreme form, outside of a finely-fitting trump suit, there is a side suit of one partner with a blank opposite it, and another side suit in the other hand opposite a similar void.

North's jump to 7-Clubs was considerably ambitious when the Blackwood response told him about South's two aces, and this very much in a hurry and very ambitious player saw his partner make the contract only because of good fortune. First, because South had the club Q; second, because of the ideal distribution; third, because West did not complicate his job by leading a trump, and fourth, because the trumps were split 2-2.

After the diamond 3 lead, South was equal to his simple task, despite the fact that out against him were three kings, three queens, three jacks and four tens.

The diamond A won the lead, the heart A brought a diamond discard, the diamond 2 was ruffed, the spade A scored, the spade 4 was ruffed, the diamond 8 was ruffed, so were the spade 5, heart 3 and spade 6. Now South's last two spades were set up. He then overtook the club K with the A, laid down the club Q and finished by cashing the spade 8 and 7.

Just how would you play it? West had his club 2?

Political Moves May Hit

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Look for temporary fireworks in the usually harmonious War Investigating Committee—from now until after election.

As a matter of campaign strategy, at least one Republican member may be expected to make moves to embarrass Chairman James Mead (D) of New York, in his New York governorship campaign. Such action also may be taken to hurt the re-election campaign of Senator Harley Kilgore (D) of West Virginia, and prominently mentioned as Mead's successor as chairman.

Moves are already in evidence. Mead's apparent inclination to postpone the inquiry by Senator Owen Brewster (R) of Maine, into the conduct of "high-ranking officers" in the occupation zone, in favor of pushing other probes, was seized upon for criticism.

Mrs. J. O. Eagleston
Addresses the WCTU

Members of the W. C. T. U. met Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ralph Long, East Franklin street. In the absence of Mrs. Ida Warner, president, Mrs. J. O. Eagleston, county vice president, took charge of the meeting.

During the short business session it was unanimously voted to send letters of appreciation to town and county officers who cooperated in upholding the two mile limit prohibition of liquor sale during the county fair and the promise to do the same during Pumpkin Show.

Mrs. F. L. Mangan gave a solo, "Savior Like a Shepherd Lead Us." Mrs. Eagleston gave a resume of the address by Judge Camille Kelly given at the Ohio State W. C. T. U. convention.

A discussion of current events was held and at the close of the meeting a dessert course was served by the hostess.

Mrs. Nellie Valentine, near Stoutsville, will be hostess for the next meeting.

GARDEN CLUB TO MEET

Mrs. Earl Wolfe will be the assisting hostess when members of Kingston garden club meet Tuesday at the home of Mrs. F. P. Long.

OUTWEARS PREWAR TIRES

Shipments of the new B.F. Goodrich Silvertown are arriving regularly, and we may have your size. But there's more demand for some tire brands than others, and the big extra demand is for Silvertown, the tire that outwears prewar tires—even at high speeds. There's a reason! The new tread design is wider, flatter and puts more rubber on the road. More and stronger cords support this tread—give it extra resistance to bruising and blow-outs. Please check your needs well in advance. Talk to us. We'll do our best to keep your car rolling until we can get new tires for you. 1610

FELLER HOLDS NEW STRIKEOUT RECORD OF 348

DETROIT, Sept. 30.—Bob Feller, fireball ace of the Cleveland Indians, today had achieved the mark at which he has aimed since the middle of the season, a new strikeout record.

Fanning five Tigers Sunday while defeating them 4-1 for his 26th victory, Feller finished the season with 348 strikeouts, five more than the mark officially credited to Rube Waddell of the Philadelphia Athletics in 1904.

In other American league games Sunday St. Louis defeated Chicago 8-7; Washington blanked the champion Boston Red Sox 7-0; New York won twice from Philadelphia, 6-0 and 2-1.

REDS AWAITING ANSWER FROM NEW MANAGER

CINCINNATI, Sept. 30.—The Cincinnati Reds today awaited a reply from the man they have invited to manage the club next season, but refused to reveal his identity.

Warren Giles, general manager of the Reds, said, "we should get a yes or no within a few days, but he hasn't yet indicated if he will accept even if released from his present employment."

The Reds won both games with Pittsburgh Sunday, 1-0 and 3-2. In the other National League game not tied up with the pennant race New York won 3-1 from Philadelphia.

NO GAME PLAYED

Due to several misunderstandings there was no baseball game at Ashville Sunday. Ft. Hayes was announced as the Ashville opponent but had to play in Columbus. Good Hope was scheduled but failed to show up, possibly because of bad weather.

Thus whether Russia is weakening or has reached a more conciliatory mood, or is merely attempting to affect the outcome of the conference by some more sly propaganda, were questions still unresolved from the vortex of both affirmative and negative evidence, with people here outside of official life not taking much interest in the flow of the pressures but ready to await a final decision and texts from the peace makers.

Then, at least, they would have something upon which to base a sound analysis of the meaning of current puzzling events.

BUMS AND CARDS START PLAYOFF SERIES TUESDAY

Both Teams Lose As Regular Season Play Ends; Cards Say They Were Lucky

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—The St. Louis Cardinals, playing bad baseball admitted by their manager to be lucky to be in the National League pennant playoff with Brooklyn, put their hopes in the doctor's hands today as he worked on two of their ace pitchers.

Howie Pollet, their ace left-hander and top winner at 20 games, has a pulled muscle in his left shoulder, and the team physician was busy with heat treatments and rubdowns. George Munger, big righthand fastballer, came up with a pain in his arm in yesterday's game as the Cards lost to Chicago, 8 to 3, blowing a chance to win the pennant outright as the Dodgers bowed to Boston and big Mort Cooper, the former Cardinal who gave his old mates their big opportunity in vain.

Manager Eddie Dyer hasn't announced his pitching plans, but Pollet probably will go.

Dyer's alternative selection is Murry Dickson, a courageous little right-hander whose late season efficiency has given him a 14-6 record.

In spite of Pollet's handicap, however, the odds are still in favor of Dyer giving the assignment to his "big" pitcher—the only 20-game winner on his staff. The importance of taking the first game of the three-game play off series is apparent because it will be played here and the final two games are scheduled in Brooklyn's Ebbets Field—where the Dodgers have been virtually invincible all season.

The location of the games was decided when the Brooks' manager, Leo Durocher, won the flip of a coin and made his decision to gamble on the first game in order to have the deciding contests played in the Bums' ball yard.

The first game will be played tomorrow, the teams will travel on Wednesday, and the decisive battles are scheduled for Thursday and Friday.

In blowing their big chance to win over the regulation route yesterday, the Cardinals bowed to their season-long nemesis—southpaw Johnny Schmitz—who has won half of the eight games the Cubs won from the Cards all year.

Schmitz, who recently was hospitalized in Chicago for a fungus infection of his foot, was a surprise starter in the series and he held his usual sway over the Red Birds as he coasted to an easy 8 to 3 win.

Cardinal starter George "Red" Munger appeared to have all the stuff he needed as he held the Cubs to four hits and one run for five innings, but the Red Birds put together three hits—including Stan Musial's sixteenth home run of the year—in the third inning to score two runs.

They held a 2-1 advantage when the Cubs came to bat in the sixth.

It was then that the roof fell in on Munger and his two successors as the Chicagoans put together four hits, a pair of walks and an error to score five runs and drop the game into the deep freeze compartment.

After that assault, it was just a question of playing out the string and Schmitz mowed down the Cardinals methodically.

Ironically enough, the sixth inning blow to the Cards' chance for clear title to the bunting game just at the moment the fans were cheering the scoreboard news from Brooklyn—the 4-0 shutout by the Braves.

The crowd of 34,124—a record for the season—voiced its disappointment a little later when boos and hoots greeted a public address announcement about tickets for the play off.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Brooklyn fans, temporarily sane again, stood by today for the post-season playoffs between their Dodgers and the St. Louis Cardinals and hoped that the history made yesterday won't repeat itself.

They just couldn't stand it.

For with the history came hysteria as the Dodgers and Cardinals both dropped their final games to wind up in baseball's first tie for a pennant in its 70-years of major league existence.

The Dodgers were crushed to earth by a man who took almost fiendish delight in leveling them. That man was Morton Cooper, an inspired giant of a pitching machine, who hurled a four-hit, 4 to 0 victory for the Boston Braves

RED SOX PLAY STARS AS THEY AWAIT SERIES

BOSTON, Sept. 30.—The Boston Red Sox unpacked their bags today and started "sweating it out" while Brooklyn and St. Louis battled for the honor of meeting them in the World Series.

In their "sweating out" process, the Red Sox will be aided and abetted by an American League all-star team which they will play tomorrow, Wednesday, Thursday and possibly Friday at Fenway park. Hank Greenberg, Joe Dimaggio, Hal Newhouse and George Stinewiss will be among the all-star players.

The post-season series is Manager Joe Cronin's idea, and general manager Eddie Collins of the Red Sox thinks it's a good way of keeping the American League champions from "going stale." The scheme is not without precedent.

Collins recalls the 1910 season when the Philadelphia Athletics—with whom he gained fame as a second baseman—won the junior loop flag, then had to wait a full week for the National League season to end.

To keep in shape, the A's played a series with an all-star aggregation comprising Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker, Joe Jackson, Walter Johnson and others.

"They gave us an awful drubbing," Collins remembers, "but they left us so sharp we went on to win the World Series with ease. I hope these games will have the same effect on the Red Sox."

- HOUSING SHORTAGE
- Wilson W. Wyatt, national housing administrator, will reveal details of the factors which have hampered the progress of the nation's housing program, in an address to be delivered to the assembled mayors of west coast cities, and to be broadcast Monday, (10:15-10:30 p. m., EST). The housing administrator will discuss the shortages, the involved procedures and the black market dealings which have contributed to the delay in the completion of new homes and dwelling units. Special emphasis is expected to be given to the black market situation in lumber. Wyatt will speak from Los Angeles.

- CONEY ISLAND
- Betty Grable, Victor Mature and Barry Sullivan will play the leading roles in the Lux Radio Theatre's presentation of "Coney Island", Monday, at 9 P. M. (EST) over the Columbia network. William Keighley produces the full-hour dramatic program. "Coney Island" is a light, frothy love story set to gay, rollicking music and laid in the famous seaside resort in 1905. Betty Grable plays the starring role of Kate, a beautiful cabaret singer who becomes a successful musical comedy star when she follows the advice of Eddie Johnson, a bright young promoter wise in the ways of show business. Victor Mature portrays Eddie who was once in partnership with Kate's boss, Joe Rocco, (Barry Sullivan), owner of the Ocean Gardens cabaret. He teaches Kate to tone down her raucous style of singing so that she can reach "big-time" billing.

NAVY ANNOUNCES BENEFITS WILL BE CONTINUED

Navy Recruiting Station in Chillicothe, today announced that the G-I Bill of Rights will remain in effect after October 5, subject however to the following reply to congressional inquiry made by the Navy department.

To quote "The Veterans Administration has advised the Navy's bureau of personnel that a veteran is entitled to all the benefits of the G-I Bill of Rights for the full term of his enlistment, provided he enlists prior to October 6, 1946. However, should he enlist after October 5, 1946, but prior to the date the war is officially terminated and serves at least 90 days of active duty, he is eligible for the Bill of Rights in proportion to the length of time he serves during that period, if his discharge is under conditions other than dishonorable."

In view of the fact that many men have considered it almost hopeless to be enlisted in the Navy prior to October 6, 1946 and receive the benefits of the Bill of Rights, the above quotation will advise that enlistment effected after that date may also make possible the benefits of the G-I Bill of Rights, Navy officers stated. For further details, the Navy recruiter at the Post Office in Chillicothe, may be contacted.
